Christmas Island

As the Island is surrounded by deep water, it attracts a large array of pelagics including tuna, trevally, white tip reef sharks, Maori wrasse and occasionally the hammerhead shark. With endless kilometres of spectacular wall diving, pristine corals, a myriad of tropical fish, dolphins, crystal clear warm waters and sea caves. What more could you ask for. The island boasts some of the best diving in the world

Whale Sharks & Mantas From November through to April the world's biggest fish, the whale shark visits the island often in large numbers. Underwater their massive bulk is a breathtaking sight. If you remain stationary these gentle giants of the deep often circle several times and can get so close you may need to move aside as they pass by. Being plankton feeders their arrival coincides with the spawning of the red crab population. The larval stage of the crab provides a ready food source for the whale sharks. Their arrival and departure times can vary from year to year. This is an experience not to be missed. As you can imagine there are only a few locations in the world that can offer this magnificent experience.

For those wanting a little adventure, why not discover the Sea Caves of Christmas, where the wave action has eroded the limestone cliffs, numerous caves have formed, provided exhilarating diving. Inside thunder cliff cave, divers can surface into a huge air filled dome, which is adorned with beautiful stalagmite and stalactite formations.
